

Communication with Ancestors DIY Crafting with Spirit

This easy and fun to make craft can be displayed for many celebrations. You might choose to add a garland of bright colored paper flowers for Day of the Dead or drape with cobwebs for Halloween.

The combined energies of the pentagram altar cloth, sundial shell, and skull beads set the stage for any celebration seeking wisdom from ancestors.

Supplies to gather:

1 Natural Moon Phase Pentagram altar cloth and one sundial shell from your local shop or online from spiritwhisperings.com.

5 skull beads, a 14" wood embroidery hoop, needle and thread from a craft shop.

To Make:

Center the altar cloth over the inside hoop. Keeping the cloth centered place the outside hoop over to secure the cloth in place..

Sew a skull bead at each point of the pentagram. Sew the sundial shell in the center as shown in the picture. I used a small piece of rolled up tape to hold it in place while I worked. Slide the needle under and around all the center threads with each pass to secure it.

I chose to loosely sew on the beads and shell so I can take it apart later to use the altar cloth for something different. I also gathered up all the excess cloth and gently sewed it in place behind the hoop. You may choose to cut off the excess and glue the hoop together in the back to make it permanent.

Now add any additional holiday or celebration decorations of your choice.
